

BACKGROUND

Dublin Municipal Code §4.16 Peddlers and Solicitors adopted upon the City's incorporation in 1982 was identified as an element for review in the City Council's comprehensive update to the Dublin Municipal Code.

Effective April 2007, the Peddlers and Solicitors Ordinance (DMC §4.16) has been modified to clarify regulations regarding commercial sales and solicitation; and a new chapter, Charitable Solicitation and Sales (DMC §4.18) has been added to encourage charitable solicitation and sales throughout the City.

HOW HAS THE PERMIT PROCESS IMPROVED?

Under the previous Ordinance, no distinction existed between commercial and charitable solicitation and sales; therefore, both groups were required to meet the same permit requirements. Creating the Charitable Solicitation and Sales Chapter now encourages Dublin residents to support charitable organizations by streamlining the requirements for obtaining charitable solicitation permits, including the ability to obtain group permits and eliminating the application fee for charitable solicitation and sales permits.

WHY DOES THE CITY REQUIRE PERMITS?

Peddler and Solicitor permits for commercial and charitable purposes are required to protect the health, safety and welfare of the community against unlawful and criminal activities including fraud, burglary, and misrepresentation.

FIRST AMENDMENT ACTIVITIES EXEMPT

Groups and individuals engaging in First Amendment activities are exempt from the requirements of Dublin Municipal Code §4.16 Peddlers and Solicitors and §4.18 Charitable Solicitation and Sales.

If you have questions about the possible exemption of an activity, please contact Dublin Police Services.
